international wars have become increasingly rare.

VII In this picture, a couple is looking at a beautiful landscape on the TV though the very same view is laid out just outside the window. In my opinion, this is an irony to today's world, in which we can see whatever we want with modern technologies. These technologies are useful, but recently, many people are more interested in the Internet and social media than in looking at what is happening in front of them. However, reality is sometimes different from what is seen in media, and moreover, we should not forget that it can be more moving and memorable than on screens. This picture tells us that it is important to keep a distance from modern devices from time to time and to gain firsthand experience.
